'Walk for Water' Haiti mission

Tuesday, March 16, 2010

With the backing of the Charleston Place Hotel and the support of the entire restaurant community, I have been fortunate to be able to help numerous Lowcountry residents in need. Each effort has been a collaboration between many members of this community who were willing to take one small step to help another.

Now I am asking the community, again, to take one more step, this time to help Water Missions International build purification systems for Haiti and beyond.

On March 20 at 9 a.m., I urge you to join me, the Charleston Grill and Charlie Magazine as we and countless others "Walk for Water." This 3.5-mile walk will begin at Cannon Park on the corner of Rutledge Avenue and Calhoun Street. I ask you to go to www.quencht heir thirst.com and sign on to be part of "Team Charlie" or "Team Charleston Grill." I ask you to spread the Web address to your friends and business associates. I am asking you to donate $10, $20, $100 or whatever you can afford to be part of this historic walk.

I like to dream big and I believe that we as a community can help thousands upon thousands of people around the globe with just one small step. Let's make that step together.

I look forward to seeing thousands of you Saturday morning the 20th as we "Walk for Water."
